

Legal information on the use of the HAWK method

The HAWK method is a revolutionary method of risk analysis, whether in a professional environment or in a private home, and is applicable worldwide.

This HAWK method remains the entire property of the following persons in their own name and who are Messrs CASTELLA Stéphane and TOUACHE Yannick, both living in the commune of Meyreuil (as of 14 May 2020).

The sale of this method is therefore prohibited and the sale contract only concerns the authorisation to use this HAWK method. This service contract, once signed, gives the authorisation to use the HAWK method without any time limit to the signatory of the contract but only in the family home when it is an individual or for the whole company when it is a company that signs this service contract.

The user of the HAWK method is solely responsible for the data he collects and for the correct use of this method. The signatory of the Service Agreement may not resell the service to another person or lend the HAWK Method to anyone who has not signed the HAWK Method Service Agreement.

It is strictly forbidden to not have signed the Service Agreement AND to possess, even in a computerised manner, a medium or the HAWK Method itself. Possession and use of the HAWK method are reserved to the signatories of the service contract signed with the two owners (M. CASTELLA Stéphane and TOUACHE Yannick) and inventor of the method.

Any fraudulent use of this method will be the entire responsibility of the signatory of the service contract and will not be able to return to the inventors of this revolutionary method under any circumstances. Furthermore, HAWK prevention reserves the right to take legal action before the competent courts in the event of any infringement of the rules previously laid down.
